Little Octopus and Hermit Crab

Emanuela Busà
Cecilia Cavallini

ISBN: 9788898741748
Rights available: World

2024 • 32 pp • Hardcover • 22,0 x 20,6 cm

A story of friendship that awakens to the marine pollution issues

Nothing for Little Octopus was more important than his wonderful glass bottle: it was his refuge, family and playmate. He never separated from it. One day, someone tapped on the glass: a small hermit crab, with a very colourful small cup instead of the shell. He was tired to be travelling in search of a new house, so he curled up next to Little Octopus. When Little Octopus woke up, he felt a great desire to follow his new friend beyond the Deep Blue, and he left his refuge. The two friends together overcame the Great Mountain made of cups, shoes, toys and a lot of bottles like Little Octopus' one... but now, they did not seem so cool anymore. They swam and swam free and happy up to the Golden Sand, full of colours and wonderful creatures.

Glyphs, What Characters!

Max Lippola

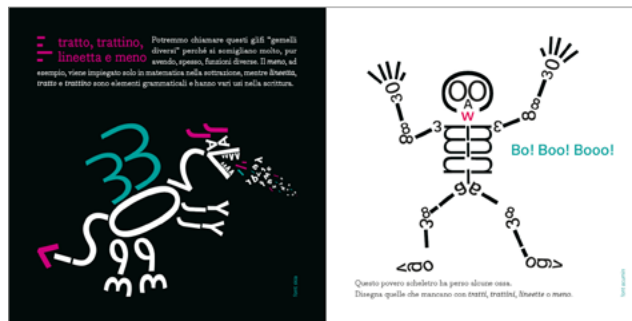

ISBN: 9788898741731
Rights available: World

2023 • 24 pp • Paperback • 16,5 x 16,5 cm

An exciting journey through the mysterious kingdom of typographic glyphs

Glyphs are among the basic elements of written communication. They structure the rhythm of speech and organize the text meaning in coherent sentences.

This book turns the spotlight, in an easy and amusing way, on some signs among the most used by typographers, writers and, obviously, readers. From the doubtful question mark to the exotic curly brackets, from the different twins (line, hyphen, dash and minus) to those glyphs made famous by digital communication, such as the at and the pound sign (hashtag).

Lollo and the Rainbow Bridge

Emanuela Busà
Francesca Rossi (ill.)

ISBN: 9788898741601
World rights available

2022 • 32 pp • Hardcover • 22,0 x 20,6 cm

«After the storm, the rainbow always comes. And when the rainbow wants to come out, nothing can stop it»

Ever since his little dog Nina has been gone, for Lollo everything feels grey. Sometimes though he meets her in his dreams, on a small wooden bridge under a large rainbow. Together they take long walks, eat cotton candy and roll on a large green meadow.

After a strong storm, Lollo recognizes that ribbon of colours in the sky and realizes that somewhere over there, there is Nina's meadow. Today, in the heart of Lollo there is room for colour, yellow flowers and red cherries once again. An ode to life, colours and emotions. A sweet, poetic and profound text that, together with evocative full-page illustrations, is able to approach the delicate theme of loss, to offer comfort and some hints for discussion.

2021 • 32 pp • Paperback • 16,5 x 16,5 cm

The great adventure of a fearless little pirate

Oliver is a clever, brave kid who lives in a city by the South Seas. He dreams of becoming a pirate and sailing the oceans in search of exciting adventures, but no one takes him seriously: he is deemed too young to undertake such feats.

Oliver does not give up though. He will prove that, even if he is neither old nor tall, the heart of a true buccaneer beats in him. Is there a proper age to love adventure anyway?

A pirate-themed adventure story, in simple rhymes, that encourages kids not to stop in front of criticism and pursue their dreams with daring and enthusiasm.

To the discovery of the Amazon rainforest

“No matter if your flight will be quiet or noisy: the only important thing is you learn to do it in the most natural way for you.”

When the wind blows you never know where it could take you... Vera knows it well. She is a curious toy hot-air balloon who has never put the balloon out of the house because she is terrified of flying. Until one day Levante, a gruff and fiery wind, will take her on a flight full of unpredictable adventures and encounters, a journey to overcome all fears and discover the wonders of nature and what makes each of us unique and unrepeatable.

Vera's travel and discover of the Amazon rainforest, one adventure at a time, aims to promote awareness of environmental protection among children.

A book to save the planet from home or school

An imaginary and colourful conversation with Greta, the girl who inspires us to become superheroes for planet Earth: the #Earth-bookteam.

We imagine her as a primary school student who takes the field for the Planet. Our aim is to engage young children readers, who love nature, to become Eco-Heroes in their everyday actions: at home, at school, with friends.

Our green challenge, #GreenHeroes, has its culmination in the #OneTreeatSchool project, because having a friend “with roots planted on the ground” means fighting the pollution of the air we breathe. Jump in, join the “Children’s Team of the Book for Earth”.

Inside the garden there is whole world to discover

Paride has never been to the countryside where his grandmother lives. When he gets there, he is very excited and wakes up early everyday to explore the big back garden. Nature is full of colours and scents, trees and animals. The garden is magical. Paride is amazed by the things he discovers: carrots don't grow in small round slices, potatoes don't come in sticks, and trees... trees don't talk.

At least that's what Paride thinks... In grandmother's magical garden nothing is as you expect it. As he walks down a long path, a new amazing discovery makes him realise that he will love that place forever.

2018 • 24 pp • Paperback • 16,5 x 16,5

A tender story about friendship

Rond and Dus live at the antipodes... literally. Rond is a polar bear: he has white, fluffy-as-snow fur, he loves taking dips and lives on his small piece of glacier at the North Pole. Unfortunately, the ice on which he lives is getting smaller and smaller. Dus is an Antarctic penguin, his belly is as white as ice and his back is as black as the night; he walks in a peculiar, funny way and lives at the South Pole. Dus feels very lonely and would love to have a friend to hug tight, but he can't see anyone around him. Both on their lonesome, Rond and Dus decide to take a journey around the globe to look for some company.
